A is in length that the Oceanic is to utdo anything afloat. She is 701 feet ong, or Just 24 feet, better than the ireat Eastern. The Kalser Wilhelm or Grosse is 648 feet, which makes her 6 feet shorter than the new boat. The following comparative table will, ive an idea of the relative size of the oceanic and other by boats: earle and other big boats:

The cost of constructing the Oceanic The cost of constructing the Oceanic is not known. It will not equal, however, that of the Great Eastern, upon which $3,550,000 was expended, or $1,-150,000 more than the original estimate. But the Oceanic will be a costly vessel, as it is well known that money is not being spared to make her the greatest as well as the largest ship afloat. Of course, her speed is only a matter of contecture. Her builders have said fee. in as strong a financial position, as even in as strong a financial position, as even governors of London banks admit, one stating that as London has financed America heretofore, now, for the first time, New York is financing Europe. No evidence of weakness is seen in the other branches of industry. Wheat and cotton still go out largely. Europe is buying because it has needs and New York is lending to Europe no-body knows how many millions because there is for the present no need to call loans. The receipts of $2,500,000 in gold from Australia is announced from San Francisco.

Americans are in the humor to invest in their own country, having a great amount of money to put out without recalling any of their loans to Europe, so that the heavlest transactions ever known in the stock exchange have occasion. trying to hold something up their ve, and the marine world will be atly disappointed if the Oceanic does hite Star-line, which is the Oceanic valite Star-line, which is the Oceanic iteamphile company. The company was regarded in 1870 and the following year he first Oceanic made her maiden yoy-ge. She was a vessel of 3,660 tons. The launching of the Oceanic points at the remarkable progress during the ilineteenth century in shipbuilding. In racing the evolution of the modrem team vassels the triumph of the white sels the triumph of the illder is apparent. It may be said that e pioneer of the immense ocean trafof the day was the Sirius, which ves sel established the first "ocean record," and from that day to this—she first left London in 1828—there has been a continued struggle between the various vessels and the companies that have since come into existence for supremacy in fast time across the Atlantic. The Sirius was of only 700 tons and 320 horse power. The Great Western was the first steamship built expressly for the Atlantic trade. She was owned by the Great Western Steamship company, and was 236 feet long, 1,340 tons and 850 horse power. Her cost was $250,000. "Ind was 236 feet long, 1,340 tons and 590 horse power. Her cost was $250,000. She came over about 1839. The first steamshlp, the Savannah, was American built, and was followed by the Washington and the Hermann, each 344 feet long and of 1,700 tons. They were built in 1847 by the Ocean Steam Navigation company for service between New York and Cowes.

It has been predicted and laughed at by many that the day is not far distant when the shipbuilder will be turning out vessels 1,000 feet in length. This does not seem possible to-day, but no more so did the 700-foot steamship in the days of the Sayannah, eighty years ago.

NAILS AND WIRE IN 1898.

Events of the Year Which Radically Affected the Current of Trade.

The following extracts concerning the market for wire and cut nails during 1898 are taken from the review of the sear as prepared by the Iron Age:

The year just closed witnessed some remarkable events in the wire trade which had a direct influence on the demand for wire nails, and the prices obtained for them.

The year opened with negotiations pending for the control by one consolidated company of all the wire rod and wire drawing plants in the country. The prospect of this consolidation being accomplished was so bright that a charter was secured for a company to be empiralized at $$7,000,000, whose head-quarters would be in Chicago. This stiffened the price of rods and wire, and caused buyers to make heavy purchases in the closing month of 1897 and in January, 1898. All buyers tried to secure long deliveries on contracts, so that they might be well stocked in case the consolidation was affected, and prices consolidation was affected, and price were materially udvanced. An active were materially advanced. An active condition of business, therefore, prevailed throughout the whole of January. About the middle of the month of March it become apparent that the proposed consolidation would not be effected, and the market weakened. Manufacturers, found new business lighter and jobbers also made concessions to their customers. The American Sicel and Wire Company, with a capital steek of $24,00,00, was organized, taking in the majority of the large manufacturers, but not including all, and also abandoning the attempt to inmanufacturers, but not including all, and also abandoning the attempt to include all rod mills. The change thus made in the attempt to control the wire trade differed so materially from that projected at the beginning that every-body waited to see what the result would be. The first quarter of the year thus ended with the nail trade in a condition of uncertainty.

April opened with buyers expecting sharp competition among the manufacturers with lower prices. They were the aggressors. They announced that their policy would be to protect the fobbing interests and that they would aim to market their production without proceeding directly to the retail trade. The demand improved during the month, but prices receded a little further. A meeting of the large manufacturers was held at Plitsburgh early in May, and an agreement was made to hol dorlices at a fixed rate. A better demand spring up within the next fortinght, but it was considerably lighter than should have been experienced at that season. The demand for nalls improved in June, steadily growing with the progress of the month, but not coming up to the expectations of either manufacturers or jobbers. Profound midaummer duliness characterized the trade in July. Some of the largest nall factories owned by the American Steeland Wire Company stopped at this time, pending an adjustment of wages and continued closed until October. The stoppage of these factories had some impression on the nall trade in August, and as the supply diminished the demand also improved. About the middle of August, the large manufacturers withdrew prices and the market developed a very strong tone. Steel billets and rods advanced in September, and wire nails were in heavy demand at advancing prices. A nieeting of the manufacturers was held at Chicago, September 15, and they formed havas-sociation to fix prices. The jobbers, however, did not advance their rates immediately to correspond with those of the manufacturers. In October it was observed that independent nall companies were creating some irregularity in the market. Good business, nevertheless, continued during the month. In October it was observed that independent naticompanies were creating some irregularity in the market. Good business, nevertheless, continued during the month. A meeting of the manufacturers was held at Pittsburgh, October 25, and surprised the trade by reducing the price of nails, the reason given being the starting up of factories which had long been idle, and the increased supply thus brought about, which would rake it difficult to maintain the old rate. The demand was strong in November, but prices were irregular and toward the close of the month a quiet condition prevailed in the trade, although manufacturers were in receipt of inquiries for spring delivery.

THE OLD STORY.

Business is Still*Hooming and the Country is Prospering—New York is Now Financing Europe.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—R. G. Dyn & Co.'s weekly review of trade will say to-morrow:

Contrary to the French surjing, the expected has a occurred. Rapid advances in prices of iron and steel products have had their immediate effect, perhaps not to the lasting benefit of the country. for there is the same reason for doubt as to its permanence, as in 1895, when shrinkage of buying and reaction soon carried prices down lower than before. But there is now larger ger demand for many other products, and without unwieldy country was never in as strong a financial position, and in the other branches of houstry was never in as strong a financial position, and it was a strong a financial position, and it was a financial positio so that the heaviest transactions ever known in the stock exchange have occurred during the week without the evidence of reaction for which many strong operators have been looking.

In products also the position of the country grows stronger. Last year's exports of wheat and corn were far beyond all precedents, but the past week has seen exports of 4,25,686 bushels of wheat and flour included, against 3,216,470 bushels last year.

mismideration the gentleman who was reading them off to him and got the total as 149, instead of 139.

Following the scores of the Columbus games in The Dispatch you will find a recapitulation, showing the individual and team scores and the averages for the six games. together with the total pins made by each player and the total pins made by the two clubs in the six games. It will be seen by this table that Columbus had 115 more pins in the sames played in this city than did Wheeling. This makes Columbus win the match by the narrow margin of two pins.

As sporting editor of a Columbus paper, which is appreciate the interest which is appreciate the interest which is appreciate the interest which is appreciate of this match it took unusual pains to six that the scores published by my paper were absolutely correct, and if am prepared to say that the scores which appear in The Dispatch of December 2s are the correct scores of the games played in this city. It is unfortunate that any error should have occurred, when the result of the contest depended on so few pins, but right is right, and I am sure that the Wheeling sentlemen will agree with me that, if Columbus won the match by only half a pin Mf such a thing were possible), they would be entitled to the money. I hope that you will give this matter your careful consideration. Very respectfully yours, E. S. BARNARD.

But while the Australian order for 23,000 tons is still on the market, with another European order for 15,000 tons of plates, the mills are so crowded that prices are moving up rapidly. That Columbus really did give up is seen by the following from the Columbus Dispatch:

"It so happened that when the games over at Wheeling were completed it was found that the All-Wheelings had an advantage of 113 pins in the games played in that etly and, necording to the way the "official scorer" of the All-Columbus club had it figured out, Wheeling had won the match by nine pins, and he so informed his paper, while the Columbus All-Stars accepted his word and returned to this city downcast and broken in spirit, leaving his word and returned to this city downcast and broken in spirit, leaving their side bet in the hands of the stake-holder, thinking, of course, that Wheel-ing was entitled to the money."

MANAGER FETTE'S CARD. To the Editor of the Intelligences SIR:-I see in this morning's edition of your paper that the Columbus All-Stars, whom we bowled for $120 a side, are trust-ing to the honesty of the Wheeling team to get back their money, which they claim whom we bowied for all a side, are trusting to the honesty, of the Wheeling team pins we scored while in their city, as we had scores at made.

In answer to the above and in behalf of my team I will say: Pirst, as to our honcaty, it was never questioned before we met the All-Star bowling team, of Columbus, and when they refer to the "official scores," they need only look up the score as the representative of the stakeholder. They have been as the representative of the stakeholder, and that he got the totals as they were totaled at the end of each name. I am certain, for I myself called them to him as he wrote them down; therefore his scores are the "official scores."

If fifty men had scored the game as it was played, and every one would have showed a difference of 105 pins, and Mr. Needham's score had shown lis pins, then they would have said. "Mr. Needham is the official scorer, and his scores are the ones we are governed by."

Mr. Needham said the difference between the two teams before the Wheeling series was 105 pins, therefore, as he is this score, and the control of the star of the score of the pins and Mr. Needham is scorer, we insist upon taking series was 105 pins, therefore, as he is this score, we insist upon taking series was 105 pins, therefore, as he is the official scorer, we insist upon taking the score, we insist upon taking the score, and they would have saids, but are trying to let themselven bright, but are trying to let themselven bright, but are trying to let them they are taken our defeat manufully; and acknowledged that they were our superiors at the game. uereat manually, and acknowledged that they were our superiors at the game. We will give them a chance to get back what they lost by challenging them to another series of any number of games in each city, with the same teams that con-tested before, for from 330 to 350 a 34de. Now, Columbus, you will mu has a state.

Now, Columbus, you will put up or shut up. We have the 130, which we fairly won, and we intend to keep it. WILLIAM FETTE, Manager Wheeling Bowling Team.
